The USR-PLUS alliance, the second-biggest partner in the ruling centre-right coalition in Romania, on April 14 announced that it no longer supports Liberal Prime Minister Florin Citu after he dismissed USR-PLUS health minister Vlad Voiculescu.

USR-PLUS co-president Dan Barna refused to serve as acting minister of health and Citu decided to temporarily replace minister Voiculescu with himself.

The reformist party USR-PLUS asked for consultations mediated by President Klaus Iohannis.
