Iraqi premier Mustafa al-Kadhimi has announced that citizens from 37 countries, including the EU, US, UK, China and Russia will no longer have to apply in advance for visas.

For $75, 60-days visas will be issued on arrival.

The move is designed to boost business and reconstruction by cutting out a long document-filled process. Until now, this has been best negotiated by using a middleman, for additional fees often substantially in excess of the basic visa cost.
