Global business-forum New Vision: Power of business has started in Almaty. From June 27-29 hundreds of local and international business leaders alongside prominent political figures in the southern capital are brought together, marking a pivotal moment for Kazakhstan's business landscape. Kazinform News Agency correspondent reports from the event.

Organizers are already known for the Nobel Fest forum, which in April of this year brought together leading experts and Nobel prize winners in the field of medicine as well as the National Teachers Award. CEO of Nobel Fest and the main organizer, Maxsat Kurbenov in his welcoming speech highlighted the importance of such an event for the business field of Kazakhstan:

We want global business, the best entrepreneurs of the world and Kazakhstan to come, and to share knowledge and experience with new entrepreneurs, startups, and all forum participants. After all, the world is going through such a big transformation, several artificial intelligences, biomer and web-three, and green technologies, and much more are happening at the same time. (...) We would like global business and Kazakh entrepreneurs to come and share their knowledge and their vision about the global megatrends that await us. I believe that we can do this. Nobody ever believed in Elon Musk. Nobody believed our speaker Richard Branson that one day it would be possible to fly into space. And I believe that together we can make the whole thing complete.
