News.az (1 July 2024)

Armenian Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan said he opposes holding a referendum on the countrys possible membership in the European Union.

Pashinyan noted that such a referendum would be unnecessary and counterproductive, given that he believes the Armenian populace already supports closer ties with Europe, News.Az reports citing Armenian media.

We are told that a referendum is necessary to demonstrate popular support for EU membership, Pashinyan said during a session of the Armenian Forum for Democracy, which was attended by EU and US ambassadors, as well as representatives from international and public organizations.
