Armenia and Azerbaijan allowed a July 1 deadline for finalizing a border delimitation agreement between the two countries to lapse, as their deputy prime ministers held fresh talks on the matter on Monday.

The governments of Armenia and Azerbaijan did not address the lapse in the deadline, which was agreed to in May, but Armenias Deputy Prime Minister Mher Grigoryans office reported that he met his Azerbaijani counterpart, Shahin Mustafayev for another round of talks on Monday.

Negotiations continue constructively, said a statement issued on Monday by Grigoryans office.
