Astana Times (26 February 2025)

Prime Minister of Kazakhstan Olzhas Bektenov and Adylbek Kasymaliev, the chairman of the Kyrgyz Cabinet of Ministers and head of the Presidential Administration, visited the Kazakhstan Gharysh Sapary Space Center and the Digital Government office on Feb. 25 to discuss potential partnerships in the space and digital sectors.

During the visit, the Kazakh side showcased advancements in Earth remote sensing and space monitoring technologies, demonstrating their applications in natural resource management, agriculture, emergency response, and environmental monitoring, reported the Prime Ministers press service.

At the Digital Government office, the Kyrgyz delegation was introduced to digital solutions, such as the Social Wallet project, which proactively delivers targeted state support to citizens, and the Digital Family Card system, which tracks social well-being across more than 6 million families.
