Greece, the Greek Cypriot Administration, and Israel on Thursday held talks in Athens on energy cooperation and connectivity. The trilateral talks, hosted by Greek Foreign Minister George Gerapetritis, and including his Greek Cypriot and Israeli counterparts, took place as part of trilateral strategic cooperation between the countries.

At a joint news conference after their talks, Gerapetritis stressed that they promoted strengthening cooperation and our joint actions in the fields of trade, the economy, protection of the marine environment, civil protection, and cybersecurity.
