Armenia has confirmed its readiness to host the next ministerial meeting in the 3+3 format, a decision originally announced in 2024.

The Armenian Ministry of Foreign Affairs informed local media of its willingness to hold the upcoming meeting, Caliber.Az reports.

Earlier, Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov, speaking alongside his Armenian counterpart Ararat Mirzoyan at a joint press conference, revealed that preparations are underway for the third 3+3 meeting focusing on South Caucasus issues. Lavrov noted that Moscow has proposed holding the upcoming sessions in Baku and Yerevan.
