South Korea's nominee for the foreign minister on Tuesday vowed to work to establish peace on the Korean Peninsula by facilitating dialogue between North Korea and the US, Yonhap news reported.

Cho Hyun, who was chosen by President Lee Jae Myung as the country's top diplomat on Monday, said establishment of peace on the peninsula will be top foreign policy of Seoul.

"I believe that facilitating dialogue between North Korea and the United States to establish lasting peace on the Korean Peninsula is one of the top priorities of the Lee Jae-myung government's foreign and unification policy," he told reporters.
