China on Tuesday urged against "spiraling up of tensions," stressing the ceasefire that US President Donald Trump announced a day earlier.

Beijing does not want to "see the spiraling up of tensions and hope that a cease fire can be realized as early as possible," Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Guo Jiakun said in response to a question by Anadolu correspondent during a live-streamed news conference in Beijing.

Trump on Monday said that Israel and Iran had agreed to a "complete and total" ceasefire amid the rising conflict in the Middle East.
