Azerbaijans President Ilham Aliyev has said that during his recent meeting with French President Emmanuel Macron in Copenhagen, the two leaders were able to resolve all issues that had previously caused misunderstandings between the countries.

While receiving the credentials of Frances newly appointed ambassador to Azerbaijan, Sophie Lagoutte, on Thursday, Aliyev described the Copenhagen meeting as marking a new era in the bilateral agenda, News.Az reports, citing the presidential website.

He highlighted the importance of restoring and further developing contacts between people and business representatives, as well as cooperation in cultural and humanitarian fields.
