Turksat has signed a cooperation agreement with leading Chinese operators ChinaSat and Spacesail, according to a recent statement from Türkiye's sole satellite operator.

The deal includes the development of new technologies in global in-flight Internet connectivity, maritime communications, terrestrial mobility solutions, communications in disasters and emergencies, and multi-orbit services, as well as offering joint satellite services to various markets.

ChinaSat, China's largest satellite operator, and Spacerair are working on multi-orbit solutions, and when their efforts are combined with Turksat, the deal will expand the coverage area of satellite communications services in Türkiye and around the world.
