Thailand on Sunday imposed martial law and declared a curfew in several districts of the easternmost province of Trat as border clashes with Cambodia continue, including one casualty reported by the media.

Thai Staff Sgt. Apisit Bunnak was reportedly killed on Sunday by a BM-21 rocket while on duty near the border, according to Thai daily Khaosod.

Defense Ministry spokesman Surasant Kongsiri said on Sunday that the Royal Thai Navy will impose a curfew in four districts of Trat, adding that the fighting continued along the border, according to the Bangkok Post.
