The Caspian Post (8 January 2025)

On January 8, the Secretary of the Security Council of Armenia, Armen Grigoryan, received a delegation led by Irans Deputy Foreign Minister Majid Takht-Ravanchi, according to the Security Councils office.

Grigoryan welcomed the delegation and praised the stable development of Armenia-Iran bilateral relations, encompassing economic, cultural, political, and security spheres. Both sides reaffirmed their commitment to elevating ties to a strategic level, The Caspian Post reports, citing Armenian media.

The discussions also focused on unblocking regional communications, with particular emphasis on developing the North-South road infrastructure to benefit both countries.
