Armenia has no intention to take any steps against Russia, Armenian Parliament Speaker Alen Simonyan said during a meeting with Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov.

Simonyan stressed that Armenia remains interested in maintaining relations with Russia and that there is no alternative understanding of this issue in the country, Caliber.Az reports, citing Armenian media.

Armenia is interested in ties with Russia, and there is no other perception in Armenia. At the same time, for understandable reasons, from the first days after the end of the war we have been trying to stabilise the situation in our region, and in my assessment we have been doing this quite successfully, Simonyan said.
