As part of his state visit to Greece, President of the Republic of Armenia Vahagn Khachaturyan met with representatives of the local Armenian community.

During the meeting, the president presented the latest developments in Armenia's domestic political and public life, addressing the systemic reforms being implemented by the government. He particularly emphasized efforts aimed at strengthening defense capabilities, improving the efficiency of the healthcare system, ensuring the quality and accessibility of education, and enhancing social protection mechanisms.

President Khachaturyan noted that public welfare and national security form the foundation of state policy. According to him, the programs and initiatives underway are designed to ensure long-term and sustainable results, strengthen state institutions, and promote social cohesion.
