French President Emmanuel Macron and Greek Prime Minister Kyriakos Mitsotakis arrived at the Andreas Papandreou airbase in Paphos early on Monday afternoon for a tripartite meeting with Cypriot(*) President Nikos Christodoulides.

Mitsotakis arrived first and is joined in Cyprus by his Foreign Minister Giorgos Gerapetritis, with Macrons presidential jet touching down in Paphos while the Greek prime minister and the Cypriot president were exchanging pleasantries on the tarmac.

Christodoulides, meanwhile, was accompanied to Paphos by his own Foreign Minister Constantinos Kombos and Defence Minister Vasilis Palmas, with talks now ongoing.
