Spanish Deputy PM Yolanda Díaz argues the blocs servile attitude toward Washington could fuel Euroskeptic sentiment and contribute to a far-right surge.

Spains left-wing Deputy Prime Minister Yolanda Díaz hit out at the EUs leadership for being weak on the U.S.-Israel war on Iran, amid rumbling discontent in Madrid over the conflict and Europes response.

Europe is an orphan at a moment of historic gravity, Díaz said during an interview with POLITICO in Brussels. The kind of leadership the bloc needs is lacking.
