Prime Minister Nikol Pashinyan stated that Armenia had created an opportunity for a political process in Nagorno-Karabakh, but certain actors not only obstructed it, but also carried out a change of power there.

Some representatives of the ruling circles in Karabakh not only obstructed the political process, but also implemented a change of power. Meanwhile, members of Armenias National Assembly were congratulating each other. Just one week after those congratulations, the events we all witnessed took place, Pashinyan said during a briefing following a government meeting.

He noted that warnings had been issued in advance about possible escalations, but despite those warnings, some individuals continued to make celebratory statements about their plans for Karabakh and Armenia.
