Russian Deputy Prime Minister Alexey Overchuk addressed the issue of extending the operational life of Armenias nuclear power plant.

In an interview with TASS news agency, Overchuk said that Rosatom could extend the Armenian nuclear power plants operation until 2036. However, he emphasized that Armenia has chosen a European vector, giving preference to certain European contractors.

Overchuk noted that the plants current operational license runs until autumn 2026, while preparations are underway to extend it until 2031.
