Erdogan will also take part in high-level talks on strengthening bilateral cooperation in Astana, say sources.

Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan arrived in Kazakhstan on Wednesday to attend a Turkic summit and hold high-level talks in the capital, diplomatic sources said.

Erdogans plane landed at Nursultan Nazarbayev International Airport in the capital Astana, sources said.

Erdogan, accompanied by first lady Emine Erdogan, was welcomed after disembarking in the Honor Hall section of the airport by Kazakh President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev, Türkiye's Ambassador to Astana Mustafa Kapucu and other officials.
