President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev and President Recep Tayyip Erdoğan participated via videoconference in the opening ceremony of the Khoja Ahmed Yasawi School in Türkiye and reviewed a new package of bilateral investment initiatives aimed at strengthening economic cooperation on May 14.

The school, located in Nurdağı in Gaziantep Province, was built on the initiative of President Tokayev following the devastating earthquake in 2023. The 6,000-square-meter facility includes 32 primary and four preschool classrooms, laboratories, a conference hall, a library, sports infrastructure, an amphitheater, playgrounds, and gazebo areas inspired by traditional Kazakh yurts.

Designed in line with Turkish safety standards, the project incorporates enhanced seismic resistance, waterproofing, and energy-efficient engineering solutions, the Akorda reported.
