The Acting Prime Minister of Kosovo, Albin Kurti, stated that the dialogue with Serbia has not failed, stressing that agreements were reached during that process, but that the main problem, according to him, is their non-implementation by Belgrade.

During the debate on the show "Politico", Kurti said that the agreement is not ideal, but that it represents a good basis for further steps.

"The dialogue is not dead. It was successful, it resulted in agreements. The problem is that Serbia did not sign the agreement and does not respect it. Serbia violates it every day. I accepted the agreement. It is not great, but it is a good basis for moving forward. It seems that Belgrade believed that I would say 'no' to the agreement, but I said 'yes', and when they saw the situation they found themselves in, they did not agree to sign it," Kurti said.
