Iraqi Prime Minister Ali al-Zeydi has called on Turkish companies to seize investment opportunities in Iraq's promising economic landscape. During a meeting with former Turkish Treasury Minister Lütü Elvan, al-Zeydi highlighted projects in airports, railways, metro lines, energy, and agriculture as key areas for bilateral cooperation.

Iraqi Prime Minister Ali al-Zeydi has extended an official invitation to Turkish businesses, urging them to capitalize on the growing investment potential across his country. Receiving a Turkish delegation led by former Treasury and Finance Minister Lütü Elvan in Baghdad, al-Zeydi emphasized that Iraq is entering a promising phase for development and economic expansion. The meeting, which included senior Turkish officials and business representatives, focused on strengthening bilateral ties and expanding joint ventures between the two neighboring nations.
