Egypt's President Abdel Fattah al-Sisi and his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping discussed ways to enhance cooperation in bilateral relations and regional issues on Wednesday, according to Egyptian media.

The talks focused on strengthening cooperation between Cairo and Beijing, as well as exchanging views on regional developments and issues of mutual concern, Egypt's state-linked Al-Qahera News reported.

The two leaders held talks in the Egyptian capital Cairo following an official reception ceremony for Xi at Al-Ittihadiya Palace, according to an Anadolu correspondent.
