The Straits Times (30 September 2026)

China has vowed a resolute response to safeguard its industries if the European Union goes ahead with restrictions against Chinese companies or products, according to its commerce ministry.

The ministry was referring to a reported joint document drafted by some EU member states pushing for a tool to tackle unfair trade and take more forceful measures against China.

The tool amounts to a typical protectionist and unilateralist measure, and will disrupt stability of China-EU trade, the ministry said in a statement late on Sept 29.
