South Korean President Lee Jae Myung vowed Thursday to continue seeking practical ways to ease military tensions with North Korea despite a dispute over the explosions of landmines along their border, local media reported.

Lee made the remarks at a ceremony marking the 78th Armed Forces Day at the military headquarters in Gyeryongdae, South Chungcheong Province, Yonhap News Agency reported.

It came after the explosions of two landmines on Sept. 21 in the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) that left three South Korean soldiers wounded.
