Georgian Prime Minister Irakli Kobakhidze stated the need to continue work on delimiting and demarcating the Georgian border with both Azerbaijan and Armenia.

"We have friendly relations with both Azerbaijan and Armenia. Demarcation and delimitation must be carried out with both states, and work on this issue will continue in a completely friendly manner," Kobakhidze said on a program on the Imedi TV channel.

Speaking about the David Gareji issue, which is related to the Georgian-Azerbaijani border, the prime minister noted that Tbilisi is working to resolve it in a friendly manner. According to Kobakhidze, the problem was inherited by the current authorities. and has been further complicated in the past.
