Denis Becirovic has secured another term as the Bosniak member of Bosnia and Herzegovina's tripartite Presidency, while Darijana Filipovic of the Croatian Democratic Union (HDZ) has won the Croat seat, according to preliminary election results.

Figures from the Central Election Commission covering 100 percent of regular polling stations showed Becirovic winning 207,281 votes, defeating Bakir Izetbegovic of the Party of Democratic Action (SDA), who took 184,602.

In the Croat contest, Filipovic secured 106,984 votes, unseating the incumbent alignment held by Zeljko Komsic, ahead of Slaven Kovacevic on 70,167.
