The Czech Republic is considering promising areas of cooperation with Azerbaijan in modernizing the capital's public transport system, including the metro and tram network, as well as advancing the Middle Corridor, developing the logistics center in Alat, and strengthening interaction in the aviation sector, Czech Transport Minister Ivan Bednárík said at the Azerbaijan-Czech Business Forum.

According to Report, the minister emphasized that Azerbaijan plays a strategically important role in ensuring connectivity between Europe, the South Caucasus, Central Asia, and other regions. The growing role of the Trans-Caspian Transport Corridor gives bilateral dialogue special relevance.

"The common goal is to make this route faster, more reliable, and more competitive by eliminating bottlenecks, increasing interoperability, and integrating railways, ports, roads, and logistics centers into a single multimodal network," Bednárík said.
