Iraq's Deputy Prime Minister for Services Affairs, Laith Al-Khazali, held discussions on Tuesday with the ambassadors of Russia and Spain to Iraq regarding bilateral cooperation and opportunities to expand partnerships.

The media office of the Deputy Prime Minister for Services Affairs stated, in a release received by the Iraqi News Agency (INA), that "Deputy Prime Minister for Services Affairs, Laith Al-Khazali, received the Russian Ambassador to Iraq, Timur Pichatkin, who offered his congratulations on Al-Khazalis assumption of his new position," wishing him "success in the performance of his responsibilities."

The meeting included an exchange of views on the prospects for joint cooperation between Iraq and Russia, and ways to develop bilateral relations in a manner that serves the mutual interests of both nations.
