Bosnia and Herzegovinas newly elected tripartite presidency took office on Monday at a session in Sarajevo, with Denis Becirovic, Zeljka Cvijanovic and Darijana Filipovic beginning their four-year mandates.

Speaking after his inauguration, Bosniak representative Becirovic, who is beginning his second consecutive term, said his priorities would include defending Bosnias sovereignty, protecting human rights and advancing the countrys European Union and NATO integration.

He also pledged to promote equality and fight discrimination. His vision, he said, was of an economically strong, technologically developed and socially just Bosnia and Herzegovina, fully integrated into both organisations.
