Malaysian Prime Minister Anwar Ibrahim on Wednesday called for "change" of the multilateral framework to reflect a new era of "confidence and assertiveness."

Addressing the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) summit in China's Shenzhen, Anwar urged developed economies to provide emerging and developing economies greater opportunities to participate in global economic growth.

"The entire multilateral framework must change. We have passed the colonial imperialistic era. We have entered a new era with more confidence and assertiveness," he said.
