Aleksandar Cupic, a professor and organic farmer who backed Serbias student-led protests from the outset, has been elected speaker of parliament following the Student Lists historic election victory.

Members of the Student List applauded Cupic, whilst the majority of the now opposition United Serbia parliamentary group, led by former President Aleksandar Vucic of the Serbian Progressive Party, was absent.

Of the 239 MPs who took part in the vote, 97 voted for Stojan Radenovic, while 140 voted for Cupic.
