Four Greek-American members of Congress urged U.S. President Donald Trump to maintain Türkiye's exclusion from the F-35 fighter jet program, warning that readmitting Ankara would "violate U.S. law and compromise sensitive military technology."

Representatives Gus Bilirakis (R), Nicole Malliotakis (R), Dina Titus (D), and Chris Pappas (D) issued a joint statement on Monday, ahead of President Recep Tayyip Erdogan's scheduled meeting with President Trump at the White House on Thursday.

"The United States must be very careful when engaging in negotiations, particularly as it relates to discussions surrounding Türkiye's potential reentry into the F-35 Joint Strike Fighter program," the Greek-American lawmakers said.
