Few waterways matter more to the global economy than the Strait of Hormuz □ and few are as vulnerable to disruption. Getting shipping flowing again through the Strait of Hormuz is a top priority.

Earlier this month, on 17 April, the UK and France convened a head-of-state meeting to discuss a multinational coalition aimed at restoring shipping through the Strait. The level of representation alone signals how seriously the situation is being taken.

Planning is underway, and the coalition is taking shape.
